

UORB monthly project status report
For July 2011 Board

Lake Levels and Flows

The warm, dry weather that has occurred since minimum discharges were allowed again on May 2, 2011 has resulted in substantial declines in lake levels throughout the basin. Recent forecasts predict wetter weather, which will help bring lake levels back up. If the District had not implemented zero discharge over the winter, lake levels would be even lower than they are now.